	Question: Comments on course effectiveness
	1. Powepoint presentations 2. Group work
	The material is hard, but there are a lot of students that help you break it down. The lectures also help to take smaller bites and understand key issues.
	I loved that we didn't have a textbook. Not only was it less expensive that way, but our readings stayed more current in a discipline that is evolving so rapidly. I did feel like a few of the readings were mildly superfluous or overly lengthy, but on the whole they were really solid, informative, and mostly enjoyable.
	I really like the articles that were presented it helped me look at healthcare in a whole different light.
	The course had a great flow throughout. A lot of the material that I was reading was very well connected to the beginning of the semester as well. This is great and no easy task when there was not a specific textbook that was used. Well done!!
	Some of the articles were just too long to get through. Others were so outdated that as I was reading them I was thinking to myself, This is not even applicable anymore. Updating the readings and making them a more digestible size would really help.
	Power Point Slides were very helpful to understand material Class presentation helped me learn and understand class material better.
	Don't think this is because of Jacki but more than a few of the articles were outdated. An Iconoclastic View by Newhouse comes to mind; an article where almost every point is stale.
	The material was very enlightening and made for effective conversations that were edifying.
	Jacki chose great readings for the course. Each was fairly interesting and really helped the class to understand course concepts. Additionally, she was great about facilitating class discussions.
	I liked that we were put into groups. this allowed me to learn from the instructor as well as my peers.

	-Very clear discussions -Detailed reviews of all readings
	The reading material was good, however I sometimes struggled to make the connection between the reading and the lecture.
	How health care is distributed and the quality of care delivered
	I liked the passports and the discussions
	Reading retention is difficult for me, especially long articles. Different media if available would be helpful? Documentaries for example.
	Excellent readings, the diversity of information covered was exceptional.
	I have taken this course from a different professor before and I have learned so much more this time.
	A lot of the articles and items we discussed in class were relevant and interesting. At times it felt a little unclear what exactly we were learning- we covered a lot of interesting general topics, but at the end of the semester I would have a really difficult time trying to explain what it is we exactly learned. I would recommend focusing the content and lectures around key points rather than touching on a wide range of disjointed, but partially relevant topics.
	It was well organized. Every class had a distinct point, and she was engaged in being there to help people learn.
	I liked most of the articles. They really long ones were not effective. It gets to a point where most people stop retaining any information because they just want to be done reading it. I wasn't a fan of passports. They honestly made me feel like a kid, and considering the class is long as is, it would be hard writing them after your brain hurts from a long lecture. The group assignments were fine, though I think having groups present is not that effective. No one listens to people who are going to read something they wrote down off a sheet of paper
	Discussing the assigned readings in class was a great way to cover the material and allows the student to stay on track with course objectives. The in-class readings and group activities were very helpful in order to understand and elaborate on topics.
	Lecture objectives were clear and well-organized. Use of opinion articles helped in seeing multiple perspectives on the same issue.
	Question: Instructor Comments
STRENIO	The instructor was great at allowing questions throughout the lecture. This allowed for a deeper understanding of the material. She displayed thorough knowledge and passion about the subject. This fostered a very good learning environment.
STRENIO	It was great to have groups to help each other understand class material. Class discussion was helpful to think about different points of views.
STRENIO	She was very supportive and flexible. Could tell that the professor was a little green in teaching health economics. Could have had more in depth knowledge about the articles and course objectives. With that said I enjoyed that class and think Jacki is a great teacher.
STRENIO	I really enjoyed how she broke up the class with assignments that we worked on with our groups. With a three hour class, it is refreshing to have an instructor that identifies the important need to switch things up. It also helped when she went over assignment and midterm answers the next class. That way we all could see areas that we could improve upon.
STRENIO	Some students made rude comments in class and the instructor did not ask them not too. Please be considerate of all students, regardless of age, gender, weight, etc.
STRENIO	Jackie was great she allowed us to have open discussions about the subjects and helped clarify things we weren't understand. She is a wonderful teacher.
STRENIO	I thought Jackie was excellent. She was well-prepared. She admitted when she didn't have an answer but was committed to finding it when possible. Her expectations were challenging but fair, and enabled me as a student to learn and grow. I hope she has a long career ahead of her, and that we can keep her here at the U, if possible.
STRENIO	Takes the time to address each students questions and concerns, has great advice for comprehending information and a calm demeanor which makes every student feel comfortable to ask stupid questions and express uncertainty in comprehending topics. overall, one of the best teachers I have had and would be highly recommended to other students who are not scared of taking a risk. Learned a lot!!
STRENIO	There were a few students who were extremely opinionated and sometimes I saw as disrespectful when sharing their thoughts, Jacki always remained professional and addressed their opinions in a thoughtful matter.
STRENIO	Jacki was a fabulous instructor! I really enjoyed the course material and the way in which it was presented by such an intelligent professor.
STRENIO	-Very personable and encouraging -easy to work with and taught in an effective way
STRENIO	I didn't like that we basically just read articles and talked about them in class. It was hard to be tested on lengthy articles that we read every week.
STRENIO	Was very open to asking questions
STRENIO	Jacki was very approachable and was more than willing to provide help or feedback on assignments.
STRENIO	She was very relatable and very enthusiastic about the contributions of students during lectures.
STRENIO	Jacki was interesting and fun, but gave good feedback and kept the class productive. She's wonderful.
STRENIO	Class always started on time and instructor treated students with respect
STRENIO	Great lectures, made the 3 hours fly by
STRENIO	Jacquiline gave very thoughtful lectures, engaging us with questions and cases that made us think. She's very knowledgeable about health and economics, and seemed genuinely interested in making sure we thought through various perspectives. Excellent teacher.
STRENIO	Professor Strenio carefully chose academic articles that generated thoughtful discussion about economic principles in health care. Her lectures were centered around these articles and generated intellectual discussion in class. I have a difficult time retaining what I read, especially material about theories and Professor Strenio helped simplify them. It was a challenging class for me but Professor Strenio's teaching ability really helped me.
STRENIO	This instructor encouraged questions and answered them in a respectful and helpful manner. She aslo managed class discussions very efficiently and sought out ways to engage the students.

STRENIO	Overall, her passion for the subject is very evident. You can tell she really enjoys learning about health in economics, and is very knowledgeable from her research. Luckily, I have had an economics class before. For those who haven't, I'm not sure how easy it was to follow. It may be useful to start the class explaining broad econ language and subjects so everyone has the same baseline. Class discussion wasn't always the most invigorating and maybe it was because there were undergrads in the class. It might be good to have more case studies during class to help facilitate more discussions.
STRENIO	Jacki is a great teacher who was able to explain complex theories in a way that everyone was able to understand them. I would definitely recommend her class to anyone.
STRENIO	Dr. Strenio was especially great at welcoming student opinions and comments. There were many opportunities to share thoughts and present to the class. I would recommend to polish the slides that she uses. In class the slides made sense, but when I tried to revisit the slides from earlier in the semester to review I actually wasn't 100% sure what they were covering and it was difficult to identify key topics from those lecture days. Overview and summary slides would be helpful at least with a bullet list of the you should have learned these during class today.
STRENIO	You can tell she's really passionate about the subject and willing to help and teach students. She'll make a great professor when she graduates assuming she chooses to do that. A lot of reading, but it was relevant to the class. I liked her approach of using current articles and studies rather than a standard textbook.
STRENIO	She was well prepared and organized, and she encouraged discussion. Great instructor.

	Question: Comments on course effectiveness
	Class based discussions helped me get a lot out of this course. Some study guides or prompts would be helpful for the assigned reading, so that we have a better idea of what will be talked about in class.
	Course was well organized and the readings were very helpful with understanding the topics being taught.
	The course content was easy to follow, and the course reading were very interesting and relevant. The design of the class also allowed for a greater understanding of the content covered.
	This course was awesome. Using the interactive blog as a way to continually interact as a class was awesome, and definitely different and new from any other course I have had. The two exams in her class were also very sufficient in showing course knowledge, but not exceedingly long or hard, which I very much appreciated as a student, as some instructors make you go over board in demonstrating learned course work.
	The readings were really informative and engaging and related directly to the topic we were covering. In class activities were engaging and helped expand knowledge on the topic and in class discussions were always interesting.
	Question: Instructor Comments
STRENIO	Instructor was open to multiple points of view and thoughtful about different student opinions
STRENIO	I like Kahoot, it make me review and think the main ideas of our course content more efficiently.
STRENIO	Very organized and always willing to help when help was needed.
STRENIO	i liked that you had a way of simplifying hard terms and you had multiple ways of learning
STRENIO	Because the class size was so small, the instructor chose to facilitate class discussion which was great for allowing a myriad of ideas about content to be heard, especially because most of the students came from different academic backgrounds. The instructor was also very easy to get a hold of via email and canvas, responding quickly to any inquiries we might have had.

STRENIO	Jackie was an excellent instructor. She was always on time and never cancelled a class session last minute, as some other professors do. She was also always very prompt in returning emails, which some professors are not, and as a student, I very much appreciate that promptness when asking questions about missed classes or assignment details.
STRENIO	She was obviously well versed in this topic and led engaging and interesting class discussions. The readings selected were really informative and clearly related to the topic we were covering that day/week. I felt like I took a lot out of this class. The instructor was great. This is my third year in college and I think this has probably been my favorite class that I have taken.
